

Contents

List of Figures	ix
List of Tables	xiii
Preface	xiv
1 Introduction: The Commemoration of Age-at-Death	1
PART I
Age-at-Death in Epitaphs – Issues and Possibilities	15
2 ‘Demography’ and the Measurement of Time in Epitaphs	17
3 Understanding the Use of Chronological Age: From the Life Course to Timescapes	32
4 Inscribing Age-at-Death as a Cultural Practice	50
5 Birthdays, Numbers and Centenarians	68
PART II
Age and Society	87
6 Towards a Geography of Age and Gender in the Western Mediterranean	89
7 The Family, Age and the Commemoration of the Dead	106
8 Freed Slaves across the Mediterranean: Commemorating the Dead	129
9 Cities and Soldiers: The Use of Age in the Cemeteries of Roman Africa	143

PART III

Mediterranean Timescapes 161

10 The Roman Armed Forces as an Epigraphic Institution 163

11 Age and Culture in Numidia: Establishing Localized Timescapes 179

12 Explaining Variation in the Use of Chronological Age
across the Western Mediterranean 200

13 Timescapes of Life and Death in the Western Mediterranean 222

14 Afterword – the Archaeology of Latin Epitaphs in the Western Mediterranean 236

Index 244